

I'm Looking At You

As a seasoned ScholarShopper, you've taken many important steps toward college admissions. Now that you've been exposed to a variety of colleges and universities in Module Four and determined their entrance requirements, you will want to let a few of these institutions know that you are seriously considering them among your college choices. Write down those colleges that you want to attend and that you believe are accessible to a person with your qualifications.

Module 5

Question: How do you make college a reality? Let's face it — going to school for four years costs money. But you do have some options. For example, you could develop a career path through a community college, vocational or technical school. See Module Three for more information on these options.

For now, though, forget about finances. Yes — forget about the costs and go ahead and just do it! Just apply to the schools for which you are qualified and you want to attend. If you are accepted, schools will help you figure out how to finance your education.

If you have not already done so, contact the three schools listed above and request an application. At the same time, ask for information about financial aid opportunities and application procedures. You may also use "College View" to complete this task on-line if your choices are part of the program. And The College Handbook located in the ScholarShop Resource Library, profiles over 3,000 accredited two- and four-year colleges.
