Dear Friends,

In 2025, Scholarship America celebrated major milestones in our history—and we embarked on major initiatives that will define our future.

Since our founding in 1958, Scholarship America has grown to become the nation's largest administrator of scholarship programs, and 2025 marked our biggest financial impact yet. We delivered $338 million to more than 110,000 students, bringing our total distribution to more than $6 billion in our history.

From our roots as a door-to-door fundraiser in a single Massachusetts town, Scholarship America has now helped more than three and a half million students create brighter futures for themselves, their families and their communities, and we're just getting started.

To keep growing our impact, we are continually working to evolve alongside the ever-changing needs of students. In 2025, that evolution included:

Launching an ambitious technology initiative to provide our sponsors and students with a more robust, proactive and data-driven experience, including an entirely new application and administration platform.

Working to reimagine emergency aid alongside local and regional partners, tailoring programs to keep students on track when faced with financial challenges.

Expanding the field of scholarships to ensure support for all students, whether they're attending four-year universities, trade schools, community colleges or workforce certification programs.

Through these and other efforts, Scholarship America is leading the way in meeting students where they are, and creating streamlined pathways to support.

Even as we evolve, however, we're committed to delivering the same combination of best-in-class service and nonprofit mission that our sponsors, students, and supporters rely on—and that's kept our very first client with us for 50 years.

By leaning on our experience even as we build for the future, Scholarship America is poised to continue eliminating barriers to higher education and changing students' lives. Your support is a vital piece of that work, and I thank you for joining us in pursuit of our mission.

Best,

Mike Nylund

From Survivor to Caregiver: Northwestern Mutual's Scholarship Turns a Childhood Cancer Diagnosis into a Healthcare Career

Receiving a childhood cancer diagnosis is unimaginable, but it's an unfortunate reality for more than 1,000 children worldwide, every day.

Kathleen Soller was 17 years old when she was diagnosed with lymphoma cancer—a moment that marked the beginning of a journey that would shape her life. While spending much of her junior and senior years of high school in the hospital, Kathleen remembers the tremendous support from her care team. They became more than medical professionals, they were her community, cheerleaders—and inspiration for her future career.

"The connections I made with the care team stayed with me long after I was cleared from treatment," she said. "Over the years, they became more than memories, they influenced my decision to study nursing during college and laid the foundation for my career path."

After completing her treatment, Kathleen embarked on that path, with help from the Northwestern Mutual Childhood Cancer Survivor Scholarship. She is one of more than 370 survivors to receive more than $3 million in scholarships through the program.

Kathleen Soller, RN: Previous Northwestern Mutual Childhood Cancer Survivor Scholarship Recipient

Thanks in part to that support, Kathleen is now a registered nurse at Cincinnati Children's Hospital.

"With the scholarship, I felt a sense of relief that allowed me to wholeheartedly pursue a career that brings me purpose."

Despite how challenging it was at the time, my diagnosis gave me my superpower... being able to connect and provide a deep sense of empathy to each one of my patients."

It's not even the money, it was just who it was coming from. Swanville's just a really special place.

Swanville Dollars for Scholars Chapter Continues a Legacy of Giving & Town-Wide Support

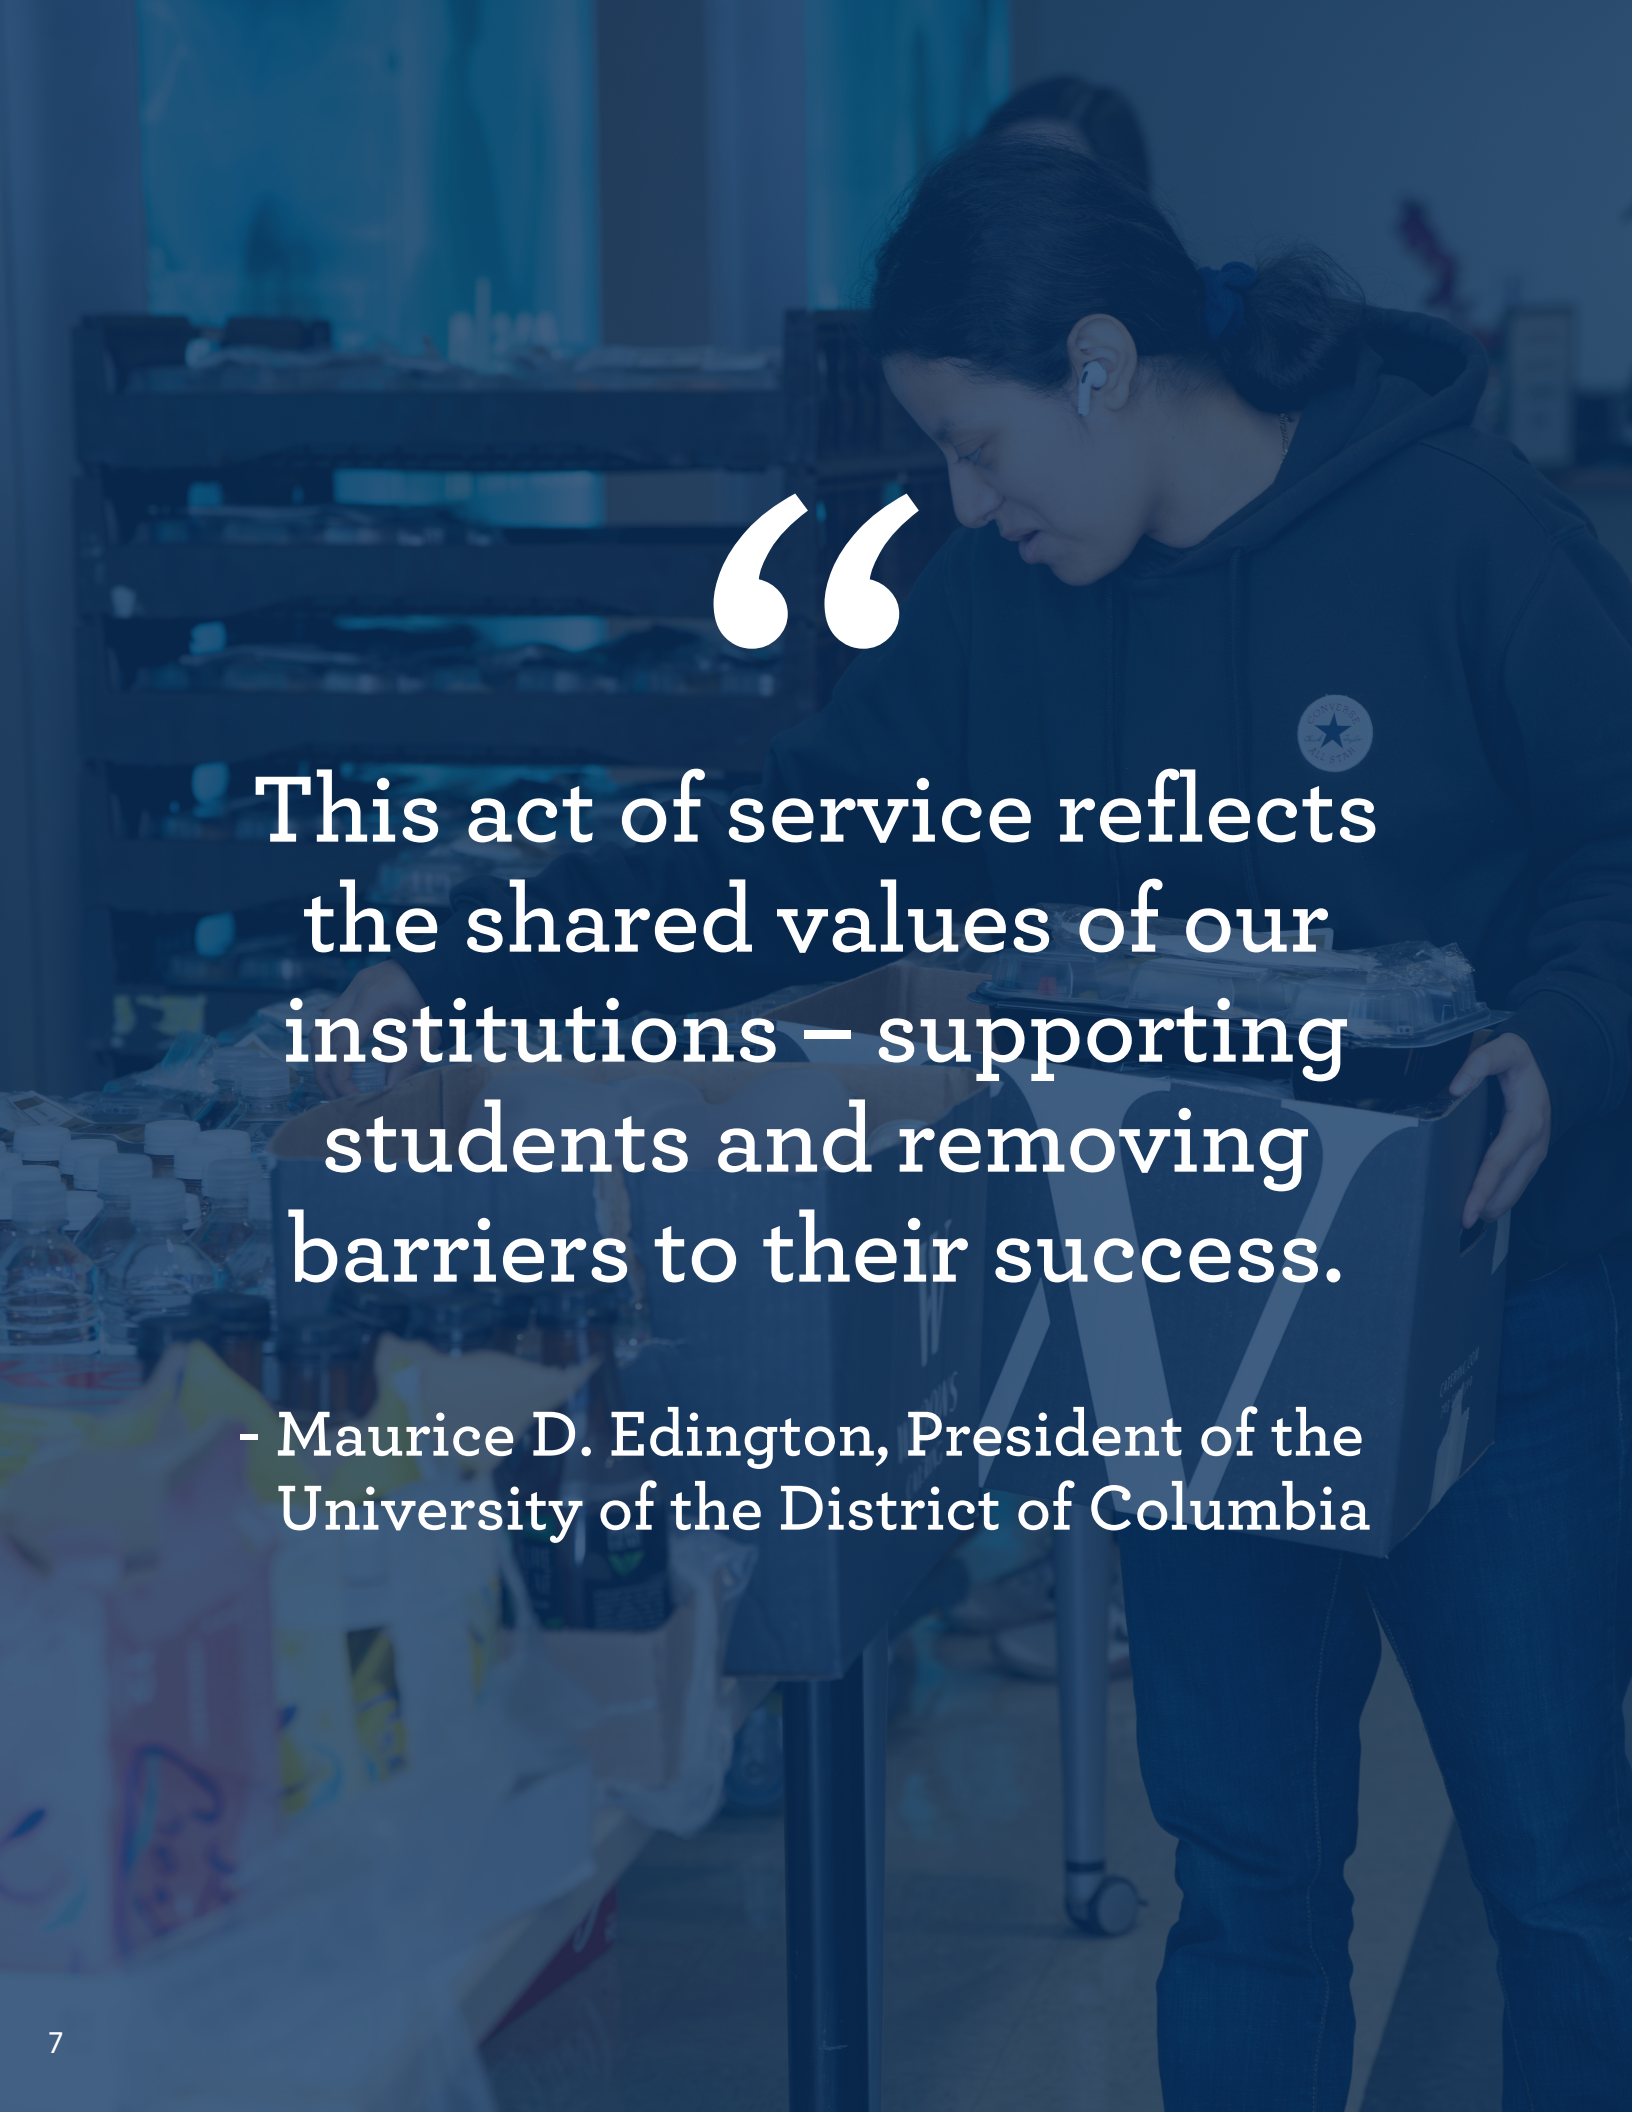

With just 326 residents, Swanville, Minnesota, may be a small town, but its Dollars for Scholars chapter makes a significant impact on local students. In 2025, they awarded an average of over $5,000 to each of the 21 seniors who applied for a scholarship.

Since 1987, Swanville Dollars for Scholars has awarded over $1 million to 750+ students. Many of those early recipients are now involved as donors and chapter leaders—proof that local investment changes individual lives and supports entire communities. For 2000 and 2001 graduates Ryan and Brittany Johnson, now married and living back in Swanville, the decision to give back was an easy one.

“It's not even the money, it was just who it was coming from,” says Brittany, who used her scholarship to attend the University of Minnesota-Duluth. “Swanville's just a really special place.”

And 2025 scholarship recipient Lily Peterson sees it the same way. “They want to support my dreams, and they want to see me go far, so one day maybe I can come back and give back also.”

Delivering For Communities: Turning Disruption into Food Donations for College Students in Need

In November, Scholarship America's Irving Innovation Awards and Partner Convening events gathering were disrupted due to widespread air travel cancellations. In response, we moved quickly to ensure that no good effort would go to waste.

Working with local partners, including Windows Catering, we mobilized to donate all catered food from the postponed events to students at the University of the District of Columbia, some of whom were facing a pause in benefits from the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP). As a result, our team provided hundreds of fresh meals to students navigating food insecurity during finals season.

Nationally, it's estimated that 23% of college students face some form of food insecurity, and 1.1 million are recipients of SNAP assistance.

"Our mission has always been about putting students first," said Mike Nylund, CEO of Scholarship America. "While travel disruptions changed our plans, they also gave us the opportunity to act on that mission in a tangible way — by redirecting resources to students who need them most."

"We are deeply appreciative of Scholarship America's generosity and continued partnership," said University of the District of Columbia President Maurice D. Edington. "This act of service reflects the shared values of our institutions — supporting students and removing barriers to their success."

Innovating for Impact: A Donor's Mission to Deliver Emergency Aid

When it comes to funding the high cost of education, many individual donors wonder where their giving fits in—and that's why there's a growing trend of donor-advised fund (DAF) investment in scholarships. DAF scholarship support is a simple, powerful way for individuals to make a tangible impact in their communities.

In 2025, Niveau Philanthropy, a Boulder, Colorado-based DAF, used their philanthropic investment to create a new emergency aid program for local students facing financial setbacks that threaten their ability to stay in school.

We asked Niveau Philanthropy founder Madeline Tomseth about her goals and plans for the program—a model for local, impactful investment.

"Many people aren't always aware of how creative you can be with your DAF and how you choose to give — it's not just "park and give." For me, it was about thinking about a sense of place. My priorities as a donor are very individual and specific. Additionally, I always seek partnership and ask: How can we meet this moment, serve immediate needs, and also move the needle toward systemic change?

In the case of the emergency aid fund, we needed fast funding for students who had lost SNAP benefits and were in that critical moment of deciding whether to buy groceries or make it to class. I shared my priorities with Scholarship America and trusted their expertise. We co-created the program and were able to get funding out to the community quickly, which was my motivation—a thousand dollars can often make the difference between graduation and dropping out.

For me, it's about thinking creatively about what I care about, finding trusted partners, and creating the systems change we're seeking as donors. It was a great alignment with Scholarship America."

Nearly 40% of college students drop out without completing a degree, often for financial setbacks of $1,000 or less.

Scholarship America's Emergency Aid programs provide students with small grants when they're needed most—and those small investments often prevent a much greater crisis.

"I am a single mother of three children and struggle to meet my financial obligations. School is so important to me, and despite all the stress, I have managed to keep my goal in mind and hope with [the grant] I can continue on."

— Emergency aid grant recipient

Honoring Service & Empowering Student Futures for 24 Years

For 24 years, Scholarship America has honored the sacrifice of those affected by the September 11 attacks by helping their children pursue higher education and build brighter futures.

Co-founded by President Bill Clinton and Senator Bob Dole in 2001, the Families of Freedom Scholarship Fund was created in response to one of our nation's darkest moments.

Since 2002, the Fund has awarded $193 million in scholarships to 3,877 children of those who lost their lives or were permanently disabled as a result of the attacks. Recipients include children of airplane crew and passengers, World Trade Center and Pentagon workers, and first responders and recovery personnel who participated in rescue efforts.

The Fund will continue supporting students through 2030, ensuring that even the youngest children impacted by 9/11 have access to the educational opportunities they deserve. Families of Freedom continues to transform remembrance into opportunity—honoring the courage and service of those who cared for our nation by caring for the families they left behind.

The Families of Freedom Scholarship has made a huge difference in my life. Instead of worrying every day about how I'm going to afford school, I've been able to spend my time focusing on my classes, getting involved, and working toward my future.

Scholarships Show Students They Are “Scholarship Material,” No Matter Their Pathway

Scholarship America’s programs are designed to help students from all walks of life follow the path that’s right for them. Along with the world of higher education, we’ve innovated our programs, expanding outside the realm of traditional four-year degrees and ensuring every student sees themselves as “scholarship material.”

The growing skills gap means there’s never been a better time for students to pursue a trade career. Making training and education programs more attainable means more people can access the rising wages and job security of trade jobs. And there’s no better way to make that happen than by expanding scholarships, apprenticeship retention grants, and emergency aid for vocational colleges, trade schools, and apprenticeship programs.

At Scholarship America, whether it’s a traditional college track or an outside-the-box solution, we’re here to work with our sponsors on behalf of all kinds of students.

Celebrating 20 Years of Aramark’s IN2WORK Scholarship

Celebrating its 20th anniversary in 2025, the Aramark Correctional Services IN2WORK program has worked with thousands of incarcerated individuals and their families, offering educational programs and foodservice industry certifications for a path to success both during and post-incarceration.

“IN2WORK students gain a sense of pride while participating in the program and this only continues once they have graduated,” said IN2WORK director Nicole McVaugh. “The knowledge and skills that students learn through the program help build confidence and competence. Graduates of the program become mentors – assisting in teaching the class, conducting study groups to get ready for the certifications, taking an active leadership role with the program.

In some locations, graduates can earn a paid internship through IN2WORK, allowing graduates to support themselves, help loved ones back home and create a savings to prepare for release.”

Program participants have opened food trucks, earned technical degrees in HVAC and electrical work, received CDL certification and more. By offering scholarships to program graduates as well as their family members, Aramark is leveraging the power of education to help people change their trajectories and build bright futures.

50 Years of Partnership with The Toro Company

Fifty years ago, The Toro Company became Scholarship America's first corporate sponsor, setting the foundation for both organizations to grow their impact together. What began as a commitment to supporting the children of Toro employees has grown into a legacy that has touched the lives of countless students and families across generations—and we are proud to celebrate a milestone that reflects five decades of meaningful impact.

"For 50 years, our partnership with Scholarship America has reflected who we are as a company and what we believe in," said Rick Olson, Chairman & CEO, The Toro Company. "Education changes lives—not just for individuals, but for families and communities.

By investing in our scholarship, we are investing in the children of our employees and supporting their academic journeys, their ambitions, and their futures. This commitment is about honoring our people and ensuring opportunities continue for generations to come. We look forward to many more years of collaborative impact."

To date, The Toro Company and Scholarship America have distributed more than $4.7 million in scholarships to 1,409 students, a testament to what a sustained, purpose-driven partnership can accomplish. Today, that partnership is as strong as ever, and the stories it has made possible represent generations of support.

The Toro Company Scholarship Scholar Spotlight

For Daniela Fernanda Pacheco Saenz, The Toro Company scholarship meant more than financial relief — it meant an acknowledgement of her hard work and promising future. "Receiving this scholarship meant a great deal to both me and my family," she said.

"Starting university is an exciting but also challenging step, especially financially. Knowing that I had support from the beginning of my Biomedical Engineering studies gave me confidence and peace of mind. Beyond the financial help, the scholarship made me feel recognized and motivated. It reminded me that my effort and dedication matter."

As a first-year student at Universidad Autónoma de Ciudad Juárez, Daniela is already clear about the path ahead. "My education has shaped my passion for science, technology, and problem-solving. I want to contribute to improving people's lives through medical innovation and technology—and this scholarship has helped make that possible."

Carrying on Dr. Fradkin's Vision: 2025 Dollars for Scholars Community Impact & Community Champion Awardees

As Scholarship America's original, community-based program, Dollars for Scholars continues to deliver on our founder, Dr. Irving Fradkin's vision of equitable education through grassroots support.

Dedicated to hometown student success, Dollars for Scholars provides a wealth of assistance by harnessing the power of community. Every day thousands of volunteers and donors across 29 states and the District of Columbia are empowering students in their own backyards—and we are proud to honor 2025's Community Impact and Community Champion awardees for their outstanding commitment to their students.

Dr. Irving Fradkin Community Impact Award: North Tama DFS Chapter

When the North Tama (Iowa) Dollars for Scholars chapter was established in 2019, one of their primary values was to provide impactful scholarships for students who needed them the most, regardless of their chosen educational pathway.

Today, nearly half of the chapter's scholarships are awarded to students attending trade, technical, or community colleges. This approach ensures the chapter's scholarships meet the evolving needs of their community and provides the same level of support for students pursuing a wide array of future careers.

Dr. Irving Fradkin Community Champion: John Rodriguez

John Rodriguez has been involved with Worcester Latino Dollars for Scholars (WLDS) since its founding, starting as a volunteer more than 30 years ago and serving as president since 1998.

Under his leadership, the chapter has grown into one of the city's largest Latino-serving organizations, awarding 40 scholarships of $1,000 each to graduates. He is a tireless advocate for Worcester's students and a source of support for families, providing community-centered expertise as they navigate the complex world of higher education.

From DFS Recipient to Scholarship America Leader

Meghan Hussey Lim is Scholarship America's Associate Vice President of Institutional Partnerships—and a recipient of several scholarships from Windsor Locks Dollars for Scholars, her hometown chapter. We spoke to her about her DFS experience, and about coming full circle to work at Scholarship America.

"When I was going off to college, I was accepted to a selective school that had a good financial aid package. But there was still a gap—our expected family contribution was definitely going to require some sacrifice and investment. So I started applying for different scholarships and opportunities, [including] Windsor Locks Dollars for Scholars. When I graduated, I got three scholarships from the chapter; one in particular was the most meaningful for me. My sister is autistic, and my mom runs our local Special Olympics chapter. I've been involved in that since I was seven, volunteering and being a part of their inclusive sports program.

My first unified partner, which is the term for the "buddy" you participate with, was named Emily. She was my age and had Down syndrome, and she passed away when we were 13. Her parents started a memorial scholarship for her, through Dollars for Scholars, for students who had volunteered a lot with the disability community or were going into a related field.

Getting that scholarship was so meaningful; I knew I was always going to continue volunteering with that community, and I did in college while I was studying international relations. But then my career pivoted and I ended up working in international disability work for a lot of the early part of my career. I've joked with Emily's mom that, through that scholarship, Emily knew it was kind of meant to be.

I still think back on having that support from my community. The whole town is really sending students off to fulfil their dreams, wherever that's going to take them. And it feels very full circle to now be working at Scholarship America, and to be looking for different ways that we can increase our support of Dollars for Scholars, grow that grassroots support for students and connect them to more scholarships in their communities and across the country."

Building the Future of Opportunity: Investing to Better Serve Students & Sponsors

The world of scholarships is constantly evolving and so are the students who turn to Scholarship America for help. Thanks to the support of donors, grantmakers, and organizations around the country, we're working toward a future where we can support more students—pursuing more paths to education and career success—than ever before. In 2025, Scholarship America and our partners focused on several major innovations to boost our supporters' impact on students.

Enterprise Replatforming

To continue fulfilling our mission for decades to come, Scholarship America invested in a next-generation scholarship management platform, selecting Submittable as our technology partner. This transformational upgrade creates a more secure, accessible, and user-friendly experience for both students and sponsors while providing a scalable foundation to support more students and programs in the years ahead.

For sponsors, the new platform will offer flexible, robust data insights to help tell their story and maximize program impact. New features include real-time data updates and reporting, pre-built and custom visualizations and dashboards, and export-ready reports.

The enhanced student experience will make applying for and managing scholarships more seamless, accessible, and intuitive, empowering students to:

Apply once and skip the repeat work

A global profile will save students' core application responses, eliminating the need to re-enter information for every opportunity.

Be matched to more funding opportunities

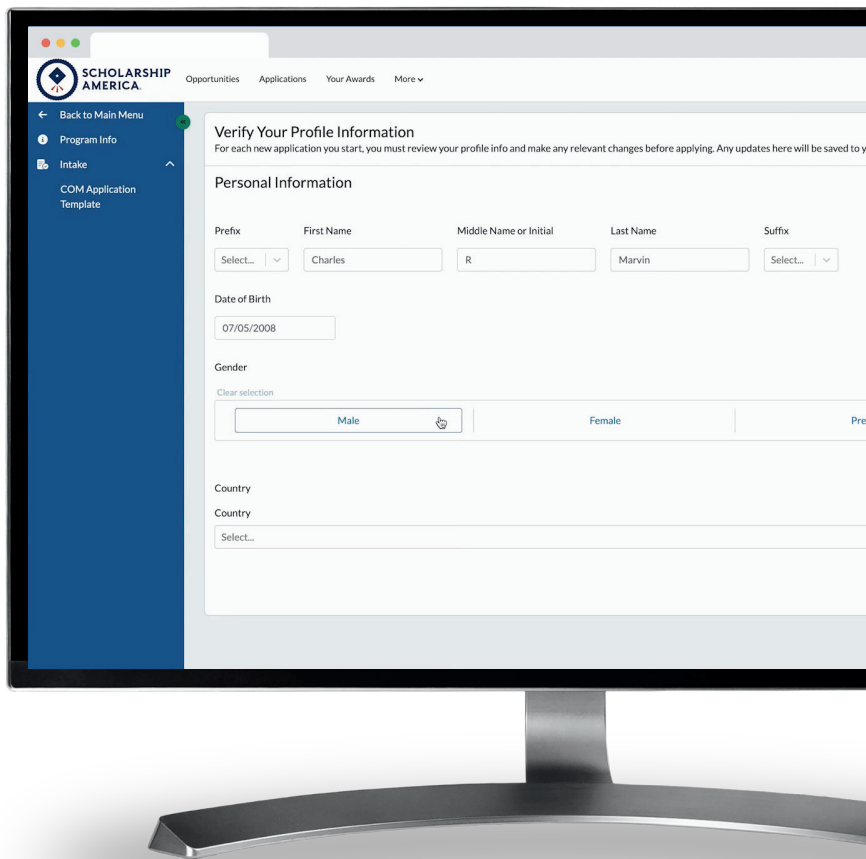

Students will be connected to additional scholarship opportunities they may be eligible for, increasing their potential funding.

Track progress throughout the process

Real-time visibility into application status, award decisions, and payments will keep students informed from start-to-finish.

Access support when and how they need it

Upgraded communication tools, multilingual capabilities, accessibility features, and dedicated customer support will make it easy for students to get the help they need.

The screenshot displays the Scholarship America website interface. On the left is a dark blue sidebar with a logo and navigation links: 'Back to Main Menu', 'Program Info', 'Intake', and 'COM Application Template'. The main content area is titled 'Verify Your Profile Information' with a sub-header: 'For each new application you start, you must review your profile info and make any relevant changes before applying. Any updates here will be saved to your profile.' Below this is a 'Personal Information' section with the following fields: 'Prefix' (dropdown), 'First Name' (text box with 'Charles'), 'Middle Name or Initial' (text box with 'R'), 'Last Name' (text box with 'Marvin'), 'Suffix' (dropdown), 'Date of Birth' (text box with '07/05/2008'), 'Gender' (radio buttons for 'Male' and 'Female', with 'Male' selected), and 'Country' (dropdown with 'Select...' option). The interface is clean and modern, with a light gray background and blue accents.

Data Insights & Analytics

For too long, the private scholarship industry has relied on scattered, inconsistent data to measure effectiveness and outcomes. Our Data Insights and Analytics (DIA) project is collecting information and building partnerships to truly move the needle on building impactful scholarships and proactively connecting students with award opportunities.

Our thanks to Amazon, the Bloomberg Foundation, Kresge Foundation, New York Life Foundation, Young Family Foundation, Gitlab Foundation, Equitable Foundation, and an anonymous funder for making this project possible.

Proving the Power of Data: Tracking Outcomes for Amazon's Future Engineer Scholarship

As a proof of concept for the DIA initiative, Scholarship America collaborated with MIT Blueprint Labs to analyze four years of data from the Amazon Future Engineer Scholarship. The program provides up to $40,000 over four years, professional development opportunities, and paid internships at Amazon.

The research showed that the comprehensive design of the program meant that recipients:

- Were 28% less likely to need to work while enrolled, enabling students to focus solely on their education
- Received an average of $3,700 more in total financial aid than their peers
- Were 24% more likely to pursue an internship related to their field of study, supporting their career paths

This evidence of impact on students' educational and career trajectories helps Scholarship America identify the program design elements that drive the strongest outcomes, while giving sponsors a clearer understanding of the return on their investment.

As DIA continues to evolve and generate actionable insights, we'll apply those learnings across our 1,300+ programs, empowering sponsors to make data-informed decisions that strengthen their programs, deepen their impact, and improve outcomes for even more students.

Electronic Payment Processing

We believe no student should have to overcome another obstacle to receive the support they need. That's why we're partnering with Flywire, a global tuition management provider, to make support easier to reach.

Today, Scholarship America processes more than 110,000 paper checks each year. As part of our commitment to continuous innovation, we're transitioning to a primarily electronic payment experience that reflects how students expect to receive and manage funds while reducing barriers along the way.

Flywire's Scholarship Disbursement solution enables Scholarship America to begin delivering electronic payments directly to students attending hundreds of colleges and universities that utilize Flywire's solution, with that network continuing to grow.

Benefits for Students

- Faster, more reliable access to funds
- More flexibility when students' enrollment plans change
- Real-time payment tracking and status notifications

Benefits for Sponsors & Institutions

- Improved visibility and reporting
- Fast, secure delivery of scholarship funds directly to student accounts
- Reduced administrative burden and streamlined payment processing

This partnership represents more than a technology upgrade—it's an investment in a better scholarship experience. Through the coming years, Scholarship America will continue expanding electronic payments.

By modernizing how scholarship funds are delivered, we're making it easier for students to access the support they've earned while providing sponsors with a faster, more secure, and more transparent payment process.

Scholarship America is built on more than 60 years of tradition — and that tradition means always exploring new ways to serve students and sponsors. With your continued support, the future is limitless.
